

Happy Easter

The Head's Lines

I hope all have a happy Easter break. We have, due to the lateness of Easter, had an extra week this term - but we lose a week from next term. This will, I believe, next happen in 2023!

We have been taking some photographs for a new prospectus, and some of these photos will also be used to sharpen up the website. It was quite noticeable that a lot of the children were quite scruffy, with wild hair and fraying cuffs. I would be grateful if this could be sorted out over Easter.

Next term starts in a funny way due to the juxtaposition of the long weekends and the royal wedding. We are having a "Street party", organised by the RCPA on the Thursday afternoon at 3pm, at which there will be a patriotic hat competition - something to do over the holidays for Years 3—8? Later we will be burying a time capsule to be opened when William ascends in a few decades' time. Preparations for the contents will be made over the next few weeks.

We have intercepted some children with prescription medicines in bags. This is strictly forbidden for safety reasons. We do administer medicine, but it must be handed in at reception at the beginning of the day. Please do point this out to your children.

If we do have some sun next term, please do remember the sun cream, hats and water bottles!

Do please bring in any Sainsbury's and Tesco's vouchers. Thank you.

And finally...

Why does the Easter bunny bring eggs?

1. Because the energiser bunny got the better job?
2. Who ever heard of Easter bricks?
3. Would you hunt for waffles?

Godalming Music Festival

The Court Singers travelled to Charterhouse on Tuesday 15th March to participate in the 'Youth or School Choir under 14 years' category of the Godalming Music Festival held in the magnificent Charterhouse Chapel. The choir performed Forest People and It May Take Angels (composed for the choir) extremely well, with 'good tuning and clear words ... well shaped phrases and well balanced harmony', and came a creditable close second (85 marks) to Cranleigh Prep Chapel Choir (86 marks).
